Michael Parkinson meets

MISTER P!

Rowen, reporter Michael Parkinson met famous TV actor Mr. P on the set of his new film, 'Johnny Kneecrusher Meets Bambo'.

PORKY: Is that your own hair done in that unusual style?

MR. P: You say? It's a wig? You say? I'm bald? You're a fine one to talk.

PORKY: I'm not wearing a wig!

MR. P: You sure? Let me see. Grunt! Hah! It wuz right! It came off early hand!

PORKY: AAAAGH! So did half my scalp!

Groan... Let's move on to another question...

How did you get your part in 'The P-Team'?

MR. P: Well, I heard that the producers were lookin' for someone stylish, witty, charmin' an' intelligent to play the hero in a new series, so I went to the auditions...

PORKY: ...And impressed them with your great acting ability?

MR. P: No, I just broke the legs of all the other suckers who wuz tryin' for the job.

PORKY: P-please don't take offence at this next question... do you ever use a stand-in for any of your scenes?

MR. P: Well, I hate to admit it... see, I may be the toughest pig in the world, but there's some parts of my job that make even me squeamish. So I'm replaced by a stunt-pig for particularly nasty an' revolvin' scenes... like kickin' cissy galsies, or chokin' animals, or (ugh!) smilin'...

PORKY: Have you any acting ambitions?

MR. P: Yeah, I'd like to play Hamlet! There's this great scene with a skull and a graveyard, see, an' I thought I could liven it up by bringin' this butcher on, an' then I drop a ten-ton truck on him...

PORKY: What do you say to those critics who complain that your TV show is too violent?

MR. P: Show me the sucker who said that, an' I'll bite his ears off!

PORKY: Ex, Mr. P, thank you very much.

MR. P: When do I get paid for this interview, sucker? Or do I have to take it out of your hide?

Problems answered by
UNCLE PIGG

Nobody wants me around. I am a big twit and have no friends. I am a mixture between 'Dim Derek' and 'Weedy Willy'. What can I do?

...Michael Standley, Surrey
Probably not much, if you're that stupid

I have a big problem. My parents are butchers. I might have to get a brain surgeon to have their brains washed. Please help.

...James Rainbow, Powys.
It won't do any good. Your parents can't have brains if they're butchers.

I keep being called a "pig", and "little savage" and "big head" and "little ". Why do people call lovely little boys like me all of these names?

...Andrew Williams, Croydon

THIS ISSUE'S BIRTHSIGN ... JIM 'N' I, THE TWINS'

If this is your birthsign, you're in for adventure in the month ahead!

You will receive some cash, which will have a micro-dot printed on it, containing the formula for a secret new earwax-melting gas. An army of spies from various countries will kidnap you, throw you into a crocodile pit, batter you with a wet fish, and make you eat cold school dinners in their attempts to make you tell where the formula is hidden. You will end up framed for an offence that you didn't commit (making a rude noise at the headmaster), and while you're in detention, the spies will escape with the formula and your comic collection.

The stars foretell only one way to avoid all this ... so if anyone gives you cash this month, send it straight to me and save yourself a lot of trouble.
